(Yes, yes.) Suppose that under the shadow of this accrete tempts of liberty, the memories of which inspire the heart of every American, suppose that at the inception of the rebellion you had been told that it was intended to free the negro, to confer social and political privileges upon him and to perpetuate the existence of a particular party, would you have voted a doilar or a man to any such purpose as that? (Cheers.) But there is a party in this country that opening proclaims this was the great and essential end of the war. I repeat, I will not discuss the principles involved in this conset. They great influed into the very theory of your daily action and education. And I will here say I am their representatives which is not remove the residue of fine the principle you cannot be misunderstood. Shortly after eight o clock she was introduced by Mr. John M. Stearns, and received with load applause. Miss Dickinson and . No one man can make or mar America, but the American people can. The heroic deeds of Sheridan, Grant, Farrayus and Hutler can never be forgotten. But these men did not save the country—the people themselves did it. If one man, however great and commanding, could not save us, be sure no one man can destroy us, however infamous or humble he may be. (Applause.) The power of the nation does not lie in the hands of an assausm made President, but in the hands and hearts of such loyal men and women as I see before me. If he dare attempt to restrain your irresiethlie moreh, crush him under your advancing feet. (Sensation.) I have no desire to dissemble nor set down aught in mailee. Parties have not changed during the past eighteen months one whit. Traitors Novik and South are as treacherous and rampant new as during the war. The only change has been in the leaders. Andrew Johnson has taken the place of Jefferson Davis, and Jefferson Davis presides at the White House. The rebel power that was defeated in the field stood triumphant in New Orleans. On one side stands the Fresident and the rebels—on the others Congress and the loyalists. The same heem before the people. They have decided it in Vermont and Maine. (Applause and laughter.) Poensylvania will pess upon it on Tuesday next shall clayery, crushed is war, he revived in time of peace? Shall therty, crushed abroad, he respected in America? Congress attands up nobty in its mighty strength, and is able to accorn the pinitude declaration of Fresident And the rebel power that was defeated in the field stood triumphant in the inclusion of Fresident and the respected in Merit the tribune of the people, stating that he adone will adapted.
